

Ann McTalls

Dear Ann,

It has been great knowing you this year. Have a fine time next year and don't take with 10 over the way home to.

Love and all that Betty

GARGOYLE 1963

Dedication To

Mrs. Helen Burdis . . . teacher of Art and advisor to the GARGOYLE staff.

We dedicate our 1963 yearbook to you, Mrs. Burdis, as an expression of our gratitude for your expert guidance in all of our endeavors; not only in producing this yearbook, but in the art studio as well.

Your sagacity and sense of humor are a combination which have promoted a continual communication between teacher and student.

A discriminating mind and a realistic attitude toward all aspects of life have made you an outstanding figure within the school community, both as a teacher and as advisor to the Gargoyle board.

The Infirmary

Left to Right: Mrs. Olson, Miss LeMay, Mrs. Kaiser.

When one feels ill
and needs a pill,
Go straight to the infirmary!

When one's weekend was too much and French begins to look like Dutch,
Go straight to the infirmary!

A friendly smile awaits one there—a true concern and expert care.
So when your humors prevent good spirits,
Go straight to the infirmary!

Ring Dinner

The big evening finally arrived . . . for the seniors it represented the shedding of their frayed purple ribbons and the donning of carefully-chosen and anxiously-awaited senior rings.

The days before were filled with planning the evening's attire, having hems fixed and dresses pressed, and deciding how to wear one's hair. When we finally were all ready and were assembled in Sage living room, it seemed that all our efforts had been well worth while . . . an attractive, happy, united class proceeded into the dining room.

We were greeted by tables beautifully decorated, each with a large paper maché gold ring concealing our individual rings. The dinner was delicious and very festive, carrying out our team color even to the purple grape juice. Afterwards, when we were given the signal, we pulled our strings, grabbed our rings, hastily slipped them on our fingers, apprehensively hoping that they would fit, and then in unison said our pledge.

The evening was concluded with the senior dress parade for the underclassmen and the all school sing. As we all stood on Sage steps, we were confident that we were members of a wonderfully unified class and faced an exciting, stimulating Senior year.

Candid

The Class Of 1963

This is the class of 1963. As a group we enjoy life immensely, often to the point of being . . . well . . . silly. But laughter and good times are just as much a part of life at Emma Willard as studying, and so we are portrayed in this picture as we truly are in moments of relaxation.

THE REVELS CAST

The senior production of an old English Revels is anxiously anticipated by all. The underclassmen attempt to guess what different parts what seniors will play, as the seniors rehearse their parts under the expert direction of Mrs. Kirkland. Mr. Locke teaches the Revels' songs to the student body during assembly period in the weeks preceeding the actual production so that everyone has a part in Revels. From the first clanging of cymbals and blaring of trumpets to the last line of Ideo, both the seniors and the underclassmen have a wonderul time participating in this joyous feast.

Through the Year

Opening Day

Although it is seldom admitted, all of us look forward in some way to this day. To the "old girls" it is the time to reminisce and discover any changes made at the school; to newcomers Opening Day is frightening yet exciting as she wonders how she shall adapt herself to this new life.

Father's Day

By the middle of October we are engrossed in our studies and school activities. One event which is cherished by many is Father's Day. Alas! the poor fathers. Games of touch football, tennis, and soccer are forced upon them by their loving daughters. The short day ends with a father-daughter dance, at the end of which many fathers are more aware of their aging limbs.

Halloween

Halloween at Emma Willard is a time to transform yourself into your favorite comic strip character, T.V. personality, or any other guise that strikes you that night. It is a time of wild antics, circle parades, and final judgments of costumes. Then a few more-talented souls entertain the disguised masses with songs, guitars, and skits.

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving Day is a happy interlude during the long fall term . . . a long-awaited day of relaxation, E.W. girls give grateful thanks in a morning Chapel service. Thanksgiving dinner, eaten in the warmth and companionship of our Emma Willard family, is always a sumptuous repast after sports in the morning. The afternoon is spent in recuperating from the meal and in speculation of what the evening's surprise entertainment, given by Mr. and Mrs. Dietel, will be.

Christmas

The spirit of Christmas is absorbed by every girl. The decorations impart a marvelous atmosphere, as do the carol sings, the lighting of the tree by the chapel, and the Christmas Vespers. Most important is the feeling of elation and anticipation for the Holidays and Home.

The Fair

The theme of this year's annual fair was Emma's Novelty. Accordingly, the class and committee booths were named after various books and novels—The Wizard of Oz, Eloise, Please Don't Eat the Daisies, etc. As usual the work council booth and the day girl booth supplied vast quantities of Chinese chews, cupcakes, glazed doughnuts, and cakes; cascarones were broken over everyone's head, and the senior Cake Walk was won by a Sophomore. The fair, a traditional success was particularly lucrative this year since the money earned surpassed former records.

Principal's Holiday

Half of the fun of Principal's Holiday is trying to guess on which day of winter term it will be held. Somehow Mr. Dietel always outwits us and the day is a great surprise. At the interminable brunch students leisurely eat from nine to one. We are free to do as we please throughout the day . . . Ski, sleep, eat; there are NO BELLS. The day ends with another delicious meal and a surprise entertainment.

School Government

Philosophy

Basically, our aim is education. A large part of the knowledge you will gain from the classroom, but education does not stop here! There is so much to learn from being part of E.W. in dormitory life, on councils and committees, on the playing field, and in the carrying-out of school traditions. All of the community's life centers around the concept that our school is a place to learn about yourself and others through relationships with both students and adults.

We do not have an elaborate set of rules. Instead, we believe that every girl, while learning from the example set by the older girls, will come to think for herself as she learns through experience. We feel that this policy will not only help the individual, but will result in the conviction that the spirit, rather than the letter, of the law is important.

Of course there are certain limits on what we do and do not do at Emma Willard; the size of the community alone makes this necessary. Every girl who comes to E.W. must realize that we do not smoke, we do not drink, and we do not leave the campus except as the regulations for leaves permit. These three rules are necessary for everyone's safety; therefore, any failure to observe these rules results in immediate suspension for an indefinite period of time.

We believe that your years at Emma Willard can be among the most valuable you will ever experience if you come with an eagerness to learn and a sensitivity to the traditions of the school. At E.W. you will find a new type of life; the friends you will make, the things you will learn in all areas, and the fun you will have in the process—all combine to make E.W. the exciting place it is. We welcome you to Emma Willard and hope that you will find the year all that we have promised it to be.

One of the most difficult tasks at Emma Willard is that of assigning and organizing the monthly "work hours" of every girl. Nevertheless, Work Council always manages to get its job done, much to the dismay of the lazier members of the school.

Athletic Association

Standing: L. Adams, M. Williams, L. Malsin, T. Halkyard, M. Hauser, E. Copp, M. Barbosa, S. Siegle, V. DeHaven. Seated: Linda Dietz, head of A.A.

The Athletic Association, through the efforts of its members and of the physical education department, maintains a high degree of sportsmanship in school competition and discovers and rewards athletic ability. A. A. encourage all-school participation and enthusiasm for the Field Days in which the Purples vie against the Greens. Thank you Dietz, for all that you have done this year.

U.N.E.W. or United Nations at Emma Willard under very able leadership this year, has experienced many renovations. Fall term, before the newspaper strike, a recanting of the day's events, printed in the N.Y. Times, was read over the P.A. system after quiet hour. Sunday night discussion groups, in preparation for the Area Studies Conference in April, have been stimulating and each student has taken more interest in the Conference this year by doing individual study on a separate South American country.

Business Committee is composed of the treasurers of the various committees throughout the school. Its job is to budget the class dues, count ballots, and account for all money taken in at the Fair.

Heads Of Publications

S. Dimond, Head of Pressborad; S. Ellis, Head of Triangle; K. Gallagher, Editor of Clock; D. Doyle, Editor of Gargoyle.

These four specimens are responsible, or to blame, for our four publications . . . Triangle, Pressboard, Clock, and Gargoyle. Each girl has had to manage and coordinate the members of her board to meet the deadlines of her publication. Amazingly enough Sue, "Elsie", Kathe and Debby have succeeded in their individual responsibilities. How? . . . no one really knows.

Clock

Row 1: S. Johnson, S. Hunker, C. Slats, S. Green, K. Gallagher, M. Lewis, M. Tuttle, M. Silverman, K. Knowlton, L. Wilson.
 Row 2: K. McPherson, M. Colby, W. Pestel, M. Frey, M. Mills, S. Davis, C. Creevy, M. Gallagher, P. McClure, H. Morgan, M. McWilliams, L. Adams, D. Niles, S. Hemmelwright, D. Clark, M. Friedman.

The school paper, Clock, is a challenge to all who work to produce it. It is a wonderful medium through which faculty, administration, and student can communicate and exchange ideas. We express our appreciation to Kathe Gallagher and the staff of Clock for the outstanding job they have done.

Triangle

Friedrich Nietzsche once said: "In the mountains of truth, you never climb in vain. Either you already reach a higher point today, or you exercise your strength in order to be able to climb higher."

In the search for a personal definition of what is real, creating is a part of "climbing higher." To bring to fruition the germ of an idea of what is beautiful is to "Reach a higher point today" and to assure oneself that one's imaginative mind has the capability to keep the search alive.

This is the Gargoyle staff . . . a chaotic group with a definite love of humor. We dare not praise ourselves for fear that perhaps you are displeased with our yearbook. We merely say that we enjoyed working for you.

Won't you come along with me? . . .
As the Sherwoods of Cornell asked,
"How many records have you girls cut?" None as yet, but we predict that these four girls who have succeeded in brightening many school functions with their songs, will not end their singing career here.

ZYKLUS

Was im Winter kalt wie zerbrechlichen Eiszapfen
Im Fruhling blüht es mit unermuylicher Lust.
Verzuckt, laufend durch der Natur erste Kinder,
Im sengendheissen Sommer bis Herbstfarbend fruchtbar gekusst.
Aber die volle Zeit hat einen schnellen Flug
Und findet noch einen weisen Ruckzug.
Unter Naturs weilender Leinwand
Gib's nur Gleichheit,
Bleibt nur eine beharrliche Aussicht,
Bleibt nur die Hoffnung auf Ewigkeit.

Michela Gallagher

Je mets le couteau sur la table
Et je m'assieds.
Ses yeux me fixent toujours,
Et maintenant ils paraissent tranquilles.
Sa main gauche repose sur ses genoux;
Trois doigts ouverts, deux fermés.
Sa tête penche un peu à droite
Et la chaise tient la souplesse de son corps.
Le désir ardent de toucher son cou nu
Est fort . . . fort . . . plus fort que moi.
Ma main s'étend toujours plus loin.
Je me lève.
Ses lèvres mures me torturent par leur tranquillité
Ses cheveux par leur splendeur.
Je sais que je n'existe que pour cette femme que pour son amour
Mais je sais qu'elle est morte,
Et c'est moi qui—l'a tuée.

A black and white sketch of a man's face and upper torso. The drawing is executed in a loose, expressive style using dark ink or charcoal. The man has short, dark hair, possibly styled in a crew cut, with some strands falling over his forehead. His eyes are dark and looking slightly to the right. He has a straight nose and a small, closed mouth. The shading is achieved through heavy cross-hatching and fine lines, particularly around the eyes, nose, and jawline. The neck and upper chest are also sketched with similar hatching techniques. The overall impression is that of a quick, gestural study, possibly for a portrait or a character design.

SERENITY

Once, when anger set my soul ablaze,
I passed along the water's edge at dusk
To cool my soul with scents of Nature's musk,
While the sun
Slowly spun
Threads of molten jewels through evening's haze.
The trembling reeds shone golden in the glow;
The soaring gulls were gleaming silver-white.
A heron stood unmoving in the light,
Snowy crest
Bowed on breast,
His one leg ruffled by the river's flow.
This peaceful scene was more to me than balm,
For now when I am angered by men's ways,
And when, once more, my soul becomes ablaze,
To my sight
Comes that night
To save me with its coolness and its calm.

LOVE

Soothing, and gentle,
love starts
like rain . . .

ERUPTING
AND BURSTING
LOVE LEAPS
LIKE FIRE!

Forever!
But never!
Temptation . . .
Desire . . .

Slowly and sadly love gives to pain.

THE CYCLE

Mutations,
 aspiring trustier modes
 to expose their petals to the all-illuminating sun Sever themselves from the Mother Plant grown in mellow soil;
Then elevate insurgent spores to thrust tenacious roots
In distant virgin shores.
Windblown, these minute vehicles carry germs of schism in their hulls.
Amidst the sensual Eden, the untamed jungle growth
A solitary Flower arises standing bare and mute Though nurtured by abundance still barren of any fruit.
Unyielding to the Wind's vacillation, gaunt and grim without variation.
Branches intertwine to form barriers to repulse the inevitability of change.
Thus shut off from the all important Light the branches weaken, wither and succumb to blight.
Stoic stalks crumble and fall,
 leaves clothed in a death-like pall.
Decaying now in the soil from whence
 It sprung, Mixing its stalwart entrails in the Dust,
So that upon its deathbed might thrive
 another Plant,
More vibrant and alive.

THE FIST

Slowly my hand closed, my fingernails
Cutting deeper, further into my skin;
My fist was strong, defiant in the Quivering tightness that forced
My fingers together.

Darkness. One light prevailed.
Painstakingly each finger was released;
To clench was to bleed, to Open meant liberation, discharged
From premeditated, rational pain.

The index remains; It slides slowly
Over the cracks of my thumb,
Cutting open all calli, spreading Dirt, sores, helter-skelter through
The air around me.

It cries with desire for clean air,
But its potential must wait, for the Thumb is not quick to yield to its Efficacy.

THE WALL

Crawling, among the pines
I chanced upon a World where I was to find a Beautiful spirit of freedom and love.

Struggling, among the needles, I was Hurt, but unaware I continued to Wander happily on the surface, but . . .

Turning in the pain of
too much love,
I found reality
as you Walked eternally in my soul.

Jill Schropp

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Academic Integrity should be had by all students in the world. Now I pick up the example.

Every day we have a lot of homework in each subject and we have to do by myself. In the bad case, if one of them don't have integrity, she will not do her works by myself, and copy the other's paper or miss a lot of things. Surely it is easy for her and she will have a lot of time to play or to do something which she like. But, seeing the big scale, she can get nothing in her studying. It is a little example.

The aim of study is to get the knowledge of all the subject and to make a good people. Wherever we go, we study in order to act smoothly and good. We can get these things through the class study, discussion, or dormitory life. And if we want to study easier as possible, because we write or copy things which others works hard or we can become idle, but we can nothing gain through the long life. If I copy the others work except I haven't academic integrity, this work is not mine, but the others. The works don't include my opinion.

In studyings it is the most important thing to consider by myself as deep as possible, and we learn how to think, how to speak correctly. More difficult we have, more advantage we shall gain through the study. If we spend easier in school maybe we shall be able to graduate and to get the degree. But in the value of school life we understand which is good or not. So we should do all things with academic integrity, and we should gain the true knowledge.

Puzzle: find the $3,000 cracks

The American lady, resident in France, was almost frantic as she unpacked.

A three-centuries-old jade carving lay shattered in its case! Back in the U. S. A. it had been insured for $3,000.

The lady was in tears when she called the local insurance man, American International Underwriters' representative in Paris. He did more than pay a claim. He spent weeks in searching for an expert in the repair of antique jade!

When the work was completed, the owner gasped: "But where are the cracks?" It actually took an ultra-violet lamp to reveal the masterful repairs.

AIU is famous for this kind of attentive service all over the world

AIU policies are written in familiar American terms. The facts required are the same as for domestic risks. Claims are paid promptly, in the same currency as premiums—including U. S. dollars where local laws permit.

Best of Luck
Always Behave your self and don't get into trouble!
See you this summer
on the Golf course!

Every magazine
has a reason for being.
TIME's is to keep people well informed... to tell the story of the whole world's week...
to tell it fully,
to tell it accurately,
to tell it well.

TIME, The Weekly News magazine

Dear Ann,
Those dance classes were quite something, weren't they?!! Have a great summer vacation - celebrate every minute
see ya in September.
Love,
Laurel

Dear Ann
on 72! You're telling me you way!
this years been fun
not meaning to be premoning but advising you've missed a lot but gained a lot! Maybe next year I gain a lot of what you missed this year! That's probably okay to read but I hope you know what I mean! Come this summer and write!
Have fun
Love,
Rosanne

Ann —

We'll we've almost made it through geometry!!
Just the EXX EXX!!
Have a terrific summer!
